

CANCER SELLS!

The young man was very intense but quiet throughout two days of the self reflective workshop on "Spirituality and Social Activism". We had a few interesting dialogues on the various issues that came up.

The dialogue took the inevitable direction of environmental destruction, the film on the Pachamama Alliance was particularly evocative, and feelings ran deep. After a period of pregnant silence, the young man spoke at length for the first time. "When we fall I'll with cancer, what do we do?" he started. "We try hard to cure ourselves and if that does not work, we cut the cancer cells out of the body, or kill it with radiation. Every day man is buying and selling cancer. Fertilizers are a cancer on the earth, pollution is a cancer all of them are killing life forms. And man is the one who lives by selling this cancer. If we believe in Ghaia, then she will deal with the cancer on her body. The cancer cells don't look for a cure, they just keep consuming the host and growing without limit. And the more advanced the cancer, the faster they grow".

Needless to say, the dialogue was very different after this insight!

I guess one way forward is to learn how to allow Bhoomi Devi to heal herself, and if that means she amputates the human cancer, so be it.
